1. CONTEXT

Cybersecurity awareness and culture

At a time of transformation and uncertainty, it is essential to maintain security in cyberspace, in accordance with the new challenges and threats facing it. Turning this challenge into an opportunity increasing the competitiveness of our countries and the well-being of their citizens must become a priority objective for all of us.

Cybersecurity that guarantees National Security and provides certainty for companies and confidence for society. This requires the commitment of everyone, especially governments and public administration, which must lead the way and offer a framework of public-private cooperation to overcome all the obstacles that arise at every step.

This contribution to the promotion of a safe and secure cyberspace must be based on knowledge and understanding of the threats we may face, on the awareness of all citizens and, of course, on the exchange of information and cooperation at the international level.

And it is precisely this spirit of collaboration that led the National Cryptologic Centre (CCN) to internationalise one of its most successful experiences in 2021: its CCN-CERT STIC Conference. Since its origins in 2007, the main hallmark of this event has been the search for the necessary cooperation and the spirit of sharing information between different public and private organisations.

This internationalisation process, which began in Colombia two years ago, will be extended in 2023 to the Dominican Republic in order to further strengthen the deep ties that unite the Ibero-American countries.
